The achievement of decent work is a part of the Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) 8. This international commitment is upheld by the states and by big business. The majority of ESG (Economic, Social Governance) or RBC (Responsible Business Conduct) or CSR (Corporate social responsibility) instruments¹ have strong links with the SDGs. National initiatives putting forward the protection of labour rights in developing countries also refer to SDG² and perceive social clauses in trade agreements and in the General system of preferences (GSP) as a way to achieve sustainability.

The conference will seek the contributions from scholars, practitioners and NGOs about the contributions of different SDG initiatives to labour rights protection and, in particular, to the achievement of SDG targets 8.5.- 8.8. (full and productive employment and decent work, equal pay for work of equal value, reduce the proportion of youth not in employment, eradicate forced labour, end modern slavery and human trafficking and secure the prohibition and elimination of the worst forms of child labour, protect labour rights and promote safe and secure working environments).

The conference will comprise three panels based on the three pillars of the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights, the topics to be discussed include the following:

¹ OECD. Responsible Business Conduct and the SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS <https://mneguidelines.oecd.org/RBC-and-the-sustainable-development-goals.pdf>, see also about achieving SDG through UN Global Compact <https://www.unglobalcompact.org/sdgs/about>, Principles of Responsible Investment and SDG <https://www.unpri.org/sustainability-issues/sustainable-development-goals>; Carrots & Sticks. SUSTAINABILITY REPORTING POLICY: Global trends in disclosure as the ESG agenda goes mainstream. July 2020.

² EU. Sustainable development in EU trade agreements: https://policy.trade.ec.europa.eu/development-and-sustainability/sustainable-development/sustainable-development-eu-trade-agreements_en); European Parliamentary Research Service. New EU scheme of generalised preferences. 2022.
